AGENDA

Zoom Session	Description	Learning Outcomes
#1: COIL Design Fundamentals	This session focuses on the foundational elements of COIL: the elements of the task sequence and the importance of establishing strong, equitable, and mutually-beneficial partnerships in a cross-cultural, international, and interdisciplinary context.	Participants will leave the session able to work with a partner to: • exchange contextual and logistical information influencing the design and implementation of the COIL module • focus the COIL module on an essential question or challenge • draft 2-3 disciplinary and intercultural COIL student learning outcomes • define what success looks like for their own COIL module, to revisit in Session 4
#2: Building Meaningful Relationships Online	This session takes a deep dive into strategies for helping students successfully develop trust, social presence, and collaborative relationships with multicultural and multilingual peers online.	Participants will leave the session able to work with a partner to: • develop pre-COIL activities that excite and prepare students to engage meaningfully with international peers online • design icebreaker experiences that reveal diverse perspectives and foster cohesion across cultures, languages, and disciplines.

#3: Teams, Tasks, and Technology	This session concentrates on the project that energizes the COIL experience, preparing participants to guide effective teams, choose appropriate technological tools, and design tasks that facilitate true collaboration.	Participants will leave the session able to work with a partner to: • create activities that help students define roles, responsibilities, and communication strategies • co-design a feasible collaborative task • choose technology tools that support accessible, safe synchronous and asynchronous collaboration • identify common COIL pitfalls (uneven participation, time zone friction, cultural miscommunication) and build in mid-COIL check-ins to catch and address them early
#4: Reflection, Assessment, and Celebration	The workshop concludes with an examination of the different ways students and educators can synthesize learning and make long term meaning of the COIL experience.	Participants will leave the session able to work with a partner to: • create reflection activities that encourage students to recognize their academic learning and intercultural growth • co-develop assessment, grading, and feedback strategies that foster continuous improvement • prepare recognition activities that celebrate accomplishments and support personal, professional, and civic success • revisit their Session 1 definition of success and reflect on their own growth as COIL partners
